UNCONFIRMED DISPATCHES ARE RECEIVED TODAY

DOES NOT INCLUDE SIX POLICE-MEN, REPORTED LYNCHED BY STUDENTS

STRICT CENSORSHIP IS NOW IMPOSED AT CARACAS, REPORTED

Bogota, Colombia, March 9.—(UP)—Thirty persons have been killed in Venezuelan disorders in the past few days, according to unconfirmed dispatches reaching Cucuta from Caracas today.

This does not include six policemen, said to have been lynched by student agitations.

Many students have been arrested as result of the disorders and held in jail. The government is understood to have offered them freedom on bail, but the students declined to negotiate with the government.

The uprisings were given here by travelers who crossed the Venezuelan line at Cucuta. They said a strict censorship had been imposed through out Caracas since the disorders started.

The Bogota newspaper El Tiempo, quoting some of the travelers, said that the trouble started when about 500 students paraded, singing the Marseilles and shouting "down with the tyrant Gomez," the president.

The disorders grew in intensity, travelers told the United Press.

Several students were said to have spoken against United States intervention in Nicaragua and also have voiced fear that foreign exploitation of Maracaiho's oil resources might result in separation of that region from Venezuela. Several students were arrested, the travelers said.

Police were said to have fired into a group of the students and this led to the six lynchings, the travelers reported.

After the first arrest the students declared a general strike and demanded the government free their colleagues, according to the reports. Many students were said to have gone to the jails and demanded they be arrested along with their friends.

Twenty-five prominent lawyers were arrested along with the students, the newspaper Tiempo said, and many were taken to the rotunda in Porto Cabello, a fortress famous for its dungeons.

Among the stories told by travelers, and unconfirmed were:

That the army and police forces under Eustaquio Gomez, brother of the president, dispersed meetings by using machine guns.

The French minister, who attempted to mediate, was ordered to leave the country.

That for three consecutive days activities in Caracas were suspended and only women and children, wearing black, were seen on the streets.

That students put nails on the highways to prevent traffic.

That strikers seized the semi-official newspaper El Universal and prevented its publication.

SNOW CAUSES ABANDONMENT OF ENDURANCE TRY

Mt. Clemens, Mich., March 9.—(UP)—Snow, driven by a powerful wind, forced Eddie Stinson and Capt. George Haldeman to abandon their effort to create a new world's endurance flight record at 3 a. m. today.

At that time they had been aloft in the special Stinson-Detroit airplane 18½ hours.

The long-winged orange and black plane had performed admirably until the snowstorm, which obscured vision and perilled the fliers' safety.

The whirlwind motor, which had worked 420 hours before the flight started, performed perfectly, the fliers said.

Before retiring, Stinson said if weather conditions permitted he would re-start his attempt at noon today.

CONVICTION OF GUARDSMAN IS SUSTAINED

THE NATIONAL GUARD WINS IN FIRST APPEAL FROM COURT DECISION

MEMBER ARRESTED FOR FAILURE TO ATTEND COMPANY DRILL

St. Paul, March 9.—(UP)—The national guard won in the first appeal from one of its court decisions in more than 25 years when today a decision was handed down in an Owatonna, Minn., case, sustaining conviction of a guardsman.

Francis L. Klinge, Owatonna, enlisted in the naval reserve for four years on April 10, 1925, and Dec. 6, he enlisted in Co. F, 135th infantry.

Early in 1927 he was arrested for failure to attend drill. After a court fight in which he secured a writ of habeas corpus, Klinge was found guilty, and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and serve 25 days in jail.

In an appeal to the district court, Klinge lost, and an appeal was taken to the supreme tribunal, on the contention he had not legally been taken into the national guard because of his previous enlistment, and the fact that he only signed the oath, instead of verbally swearing to it.

National guard officers pointed out that a much more severe penalty might have been exacted had he been prosecuted for fraudulent enlistment.

DESERTER FROM FORT SNELLING IS SOUGHT FOR MURDER

MRS. MARTHA SMITH, RISING SUN, IOWA, FOUND SLAIN

SHOT TO DEATH IN HER BLAZING HOME IN FARM COMMUNITY

Fort Snelling, Minn., March 9.—(UP)—A deserter from the army post here was being sought today for the murder of Mrs. Martha Smith, Rising Sun, Ia., who was found shot to death in her blazing home.

Army and civil authorities are co-operating with deputy sheriffs from Polk county, Iowa, in their search for the army private, implicated in the murder through circumstantial evidence uncovered by the officers.

Army equipment found near the scene of the crime was partially identified as belonging to a soldier, who deserted from the post Sunday.

Identification was effected through serial numbers on each piece of the equipment, which included an army overcoat, a pistol holster, and a belt. All bore Fort Snelling marks.

The soldier's name is being withheld, although it was learned he enlisted in the third infantry in October, giving his home address as St. Louis, Mo. He enlisted at Little Rock, Ark., and gave his mother's address as Helmer, Ind. A check on the street address given as his home in St. Louis revealed the address is a vacant lot.

Mrs. Smith was murdered Wednesday, apparently by a person who believed there was a large sum of money in the house. It is believed he set fire to her home in an effort to cover up the crime. Mrs. Smith's body was retrieved from the burning home by neighbors.

GREAT VULTURE IS BLAMED FOR CRASH OF PLANE

Managua, Nicaragua, March 9.—(UP)—A great vulture—one of the type of huge buzzards which hovers over battlefields—today was blamed for the crash of a United States marine airplane in which Captain William C. Bird, Orangeburg, S. C., and Sergeant Rudolph A. Frankforter were killed.

The plane was going into a landing near Esteli when it collided with the vulture. The force of the impact caused one of the struts of the plane to break and the wing collapsed, the plane twisting into a nose dive.

Both Bird and Frankforter attempted to use their parachutes but the plane was too close to the ground for the parachutes to open properly. Both were dead when found. Their bodies were brought here by airplane.

Bird and Frankforter both were married. Frankforter has three children living at Quantico.

DETAILS OF AN ALLEGED BOMB PLOT ARE AIRED

REBELS HOPED TO KILL PRESIDENT CALLES AND FORMER PRESIDENT OBREGON

DETAILS PRINTED IN MEXICO CITY PAPERS, VARIOUS STORIES GIVEN

Mexico City, March 9.—(UP)—Details of an alleged rebel bomb plot by which it was hoped to kill President Calles and former President Alvaro Obregon, were printed today in Mexico City newspapers.

One story said the plotters intended to bomb Chapultepec Castle, the home of the president, by airplane. The plotters, the story said, then intended to fly across the American border.

The newspaper Grafico said that Max Holung, an inventor and prominent member of German colony, had been arrested in connection with the alleged plot. Holung was arrested, the story said, in the same house where Father Irineo Osorio Leyva was arrested Saturday. Bomb materials and books regarding explosives were said to have been found.

Holung told authorities his work was purely scientific and he pointed out he had numerous patents in the United States and Germany.

The newspaper El Sol told of the plan to use airplanes in bombing the president's palace and in the subsequent flight, other newspapers said, the conspirators planned to wreck trains and kill both Calles and Obregon.

LAST MINUTE CHANGES MAY DEFEAT BILL

PARTY RANKS ARE SPLIT CONTEMPLATING THE MEASURE

MANY REPUBLICANS OPPOSE THEIR LEADERS IN SUPPORTING IT

By THOMAS L. STOKES

Washington, May 9.—Supporters of the Norris-White "lame duck" constitutional amendment rallied their forces in the house for the showdown today, apparently with defeat facing them unless there are some last-minute changes.

Republicans leaders, after a heavy attack in which they participated personally yesterday, appeared to have swung the necessary third of the house behind them. Two-thirds is required to pass the amendment, which would abolish the "lame duck" session of congress and change the date of presidential inauguration and beginning of congress to January.

Party ranks are split, many republicans opposing their leaders in supporting the amendment, and many democrats leaving their leaders to fight for it.

The house today was to begin to vote on several amendments offered. The only amendment taken up yesterday was thrown out on a point of order—the Bankhead amendment which would have increased house members' terms from two to four years.

A test vote was to come today on the first amendment scheduled for a vote. This was one offered by Rep. Chindblom, republican, of Illinois, which would strike out the first section of the resolution providing for the change of dates to January, and thus would kill the whole purpose of the amendment. Chief among several other amendments was that offered by Rep. Lozier, democrat, Missouri, eliminating the May 4 limitation upon the second session.

Republican leaders based their arguments largely on tradition, urging that the constitution should not be further amended. Republican Floor Leader Tilson said amending of the constitution had not been entirely successful, and contended that if congress wants to extend its second session beyond March 4, this can be accomplished by a mere resolution. If this were found unsatisfactory, he explained, congress could repeal this act, whereas a constitutional amendment would have to stand.

They argued that "lame duck" members had not used their influence, following repudiation at the hands of the voters, in a harmful way. To this the veteran of the house, Rep. Cooper, republican, Wisconsin, took sharp exception, saying he had known men, repudiated by the voters, who had come back and "sold their honor" during the short session.

Washington, March 9.—The house today defeated an amendment to the Norris-White "lame duck" constitutional amendment which would have nullified the purposes of the measure.

The amendment, by Rep. Chindblom, republican, Illinois, would have stricken out the provision changing inauguration and beginning of congress to January. There was no record vote.

However, a 109 to 90 vote against Rep. Tucker's amendment, requiring ratification of the Norris-White measure by state conventions, indicated the bitter fight being waged against the "lame duck" amendment, which requires a two-thirds vote to pass.

GETS SHOCK WHILE TRYING OUT MOTOR

BELIEVED TO BE LESTER HENDERSHOT OF PITTSBURGH

REPUTED INVENTOR OF "FUEL-LESS MOTOR" GETTING WIDE PUBLICITY

Washington, March 9.—(UP)—A man listed as Lester Hendershot, 30, of Pittsburgh, was reported in a serious condition at emergency hospital here today from what he described as an electric shock received while experimenting with a motor.

It is believed he is the Lester Hendershot of Pittsburgh who invented the "fuelless motor" which has been receiving wide publicity.

The patient was admitted to the hospital Tuesday, unable to move his arms or legs or use his palate. Doctors said the members were paralyzed. After five hours' treatment the man recovered sufficiently to say he had been experimenting with a motor and believed 2,000 volts of electricity passed through his body.

Today the patient could eat, but nerves in his arms and legs still were partly paralyzed. No one was permitted in his room except the doctor, who said Hendershot merely indicated he was an electrician and made no reference to a "fuelless motor."

Hendershot did, however, give his address, where he and his backer, J. Barr Peat of Pennsylvania, registered last Sunday.

ATTENDANCE OF OVER 4,000 AT SESSIONS TODAY

DELEGATES FROM MINNESOTA, WISCONSIN, MICHIGAN, DAKOTAS, IOWA

INCREASE OF 15 PER CENT BUSINESS RECORDED OVER THE PAST YEAR

Minneapolis, March 9.—(UP)—More than 4,000 creamery operators dairy farmers, county agents and others interested in dairy farming gathered here for the sessions of the Land O' Lakes Creameries' annual convention.

Delegates were in attendance from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, North Dakota, South Dakota and Iowa.

In 1927 the dairy business totaled $46,315,000, an increase of 15 per cent over the preceding year, delegates to a preliminary meeting Wednesday were told.

Preliminary reports showed that 470 carloads of sweet cream were shipped from the creameries, and that 82 cities consumed 84,000,000 pounds of butter.

Fifty per cent of the butter was churned in Minneapolis, 40 per cent in Duluth, and 10 per cent in Chicago.

The convention will continue through today.

John Brandt, president of the association, was a speaker yesterday. His address dealt largely with the organization of the association seven years ago, and he outlined its growth step by step.

The address of Lloyd S. Tenny, chief, bureau of agricultural economics, was read by Thomas G. Stitts, agricultural economist, U. S. department of agriculture. "Reasons for success of co-operative dairy marketing characterizations," was the topic of the address.

"Co-operative marketing is simply one way of doing business, and therefore it requires the same skill in administration and management, and the same sound financial policies as any private corporation," he declared.

"The dairy products co-operatives are one of the most important groups of farmers' business organizations, in number of associations, in value of products handled and in membership," Tenny said. "Reports on file with the U. S. department of agriculture show that in 1927, 2,479 co-operative dairy associations in the United States did a business of $640,000,000. That is an increase of 140 per cent over that done by the co-operative dairy organizations in 1915. The most conspicuous growth

EFFORTS TO OUTLAW TIPPING HAVE FAILED

Washington, March 9.—(UP)—Efforts of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters to outlaw tipping failed today when the Interstate Commerce commission dismissed a complaint against the Pullman Co.

The brotherhood had filed the complaint in an effort to substitute increased wages for tips. The complaint charged tipping violated the interstate commerce act, but it was dismissed on the ground of lack of jurisdiction.

SENTENCED TO DIE FOR PERFORMING AN ILLEGAL OPERATION

Chicago, March 9.—(UP)—Dr. Amante Rongetti, convicted of murdering Loretta Enders by an illegal operation, today was sentenced to die in the electric chair at the Cook county jail on April 13.

HUSBAND IS NOT DEAD, MERELY MISSING

St. Paul, March 9.—(UP)—A man missing for seven years, whom his wife declares is dead, is not dead but merely missing, a jury in district court found today in refusing to grant Mrs. Stella Kanna $257 on an insurance policy her husband held.

Mrs. Kanna claimed that all efforts of authorities to locate her husband had failed, and that he should be declared legally dead.

GREAT VULTURE IS BLAMED FOR CRASH OF PLANE

Managua, Nicaragua, March 9.—(UP)—A great vulture—one of the type of huge buzzards which hovers over battlefields—today was blamed for the crash of a United States marine airplane in which Captain William C. Bird, Orangeburg, S. C., and Sergeant Rudolph A. Frankforter were killed.

The plane was going into a landing near Estel when it collided with the vulture. The force of the impact caused one of the struts of the plane to break and the wing collapsed, the plane twisting into a nose dive.

Both Bird and Frankforter attempted to use their parachutes but the plane was too close to the ground for the parachutes to open properly. Both were dead when found. Their bodies were brought here by airplane.

Bird and Frankforter both were married. Frankforter has three children living at Quantico.

DETAILS OF AN ALLEGED BOMB PLOT ARE AIRED

REBELS HOPED TO KILL PRESIDENT CALLES AND FORMER PRESIDENT OBREGON

DETAILS PRINTED IN MEXICO CITY PAPERS, VARIOUS STORIES GIVEN

Mexico City, March 9.—(UP)—Details of an alleged rebel bomb plot by which it was hoped to kill President Calles and former President Alvaro Obregon, were printed today in Mexico City newspapers.

One story said the plotters intended to bomb Chapultepec Castle, the home of the president, by airplane. The plotters, the story said, then intended to fly across the American border.

The newspaper Grafico said that Max Holung, an inventor and prominent member of German colony, had been arrested in connection with the alleged plot. Holung was arrested, the story said, in the same house where Father Irineo Osorio Leyva was arrested Saturday.

Bomb materials and books regarding explosives were said to have been found.

Holung told authorities his work was purely scientific and he pointed out he had numerous patents in the United States and Germany.

The newspaper El Sol told of the plan to use airplanes in bombing the president's palace and in the subsequent flight, other newspapers said, the conspirators planned to wreck trains and kill both Calles and Obregon.

LOW TEMPERATURE GRIPS NORTHWEST

SNOW FELL VIRTUALLY ALL OVER THE AREA YESTERDAY

St. Paul, March 9.—(UP)—Although temperatures were well above zero, one man was frozen to death as a result of the snowstorm and drop in temperature which gripped the northwest yesterday and last night.

Snow fell virtually all over the northwest, varying from slight flurries to seven inches at Winona, Minn. Temperatures ranged from 14 above to 28 degrees above zero.

Albert Eichmann, 77, Brainerd, Minn., was frozen to death after he had fallen unconscious in the rear yard of his home. He struck his head as he stumbled over a log.

Motor traffic was not seriously delayed by the storm. Trains were reported generally on time, as were buses. No delay was reported in the airmail service.

LAST MINUTE CHANGES MAY DEFEAT BILL

PARTY RANKS ARE SPLIT CONTEMPLATING THE MEASURE

MANY REPUBLICANS OPPOSE THEIR LEADERS IN SUPPORTING IT

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Washington, March 9.—Supporters of the Norris-White "lame duck" constitutional amendment rallied their forces in the house for the showdown today, apparently with defeat facing them unless there are some last-minute changes.

Republicans leaders, after a heavy attack in which they participated personally yesterday, appeared to have swung the necessary third of the house behind them. Two-thirds is required to pass the amendment, which would abolish the "lame duck" session of congress and change the date of presidential inauguration and beginning of congress to January.

Party ranks are split, many republicans opposing their leaders in supporting the amendment, and many democrats leaving their leaders to fight it.

The house today was to begin to vote on several amendments offered. The only amendment taken up yesterday was thrown out on a point of order—the Bankhead amendment which would have increased house members' terms from two to four years.

A test vote was to come today on the first amendment scheduled for a vote. This was one offered by Rep. Chindblom, republican, of Illinois, which would strike out the first section of the resolution providing for the change of dates to January, and thus would kill the whole purpose of the amendment.

Chief among several other amendments was that offered by Rep. Lozier, democrat, Missouri, eliminating the May 4 limitation upon the second session.

Republican leaders based their arguments largely on tradition, urging that the constitution should not be further amended. Republican Floor Leader Tilton said amending of the constitution had not been entirely successful, and contended that if congress wants to extend its second session beyond March 4, this can be accomplished by a mere resolution.

If this were found unsatisfactory, he explained, congress could repeal this act, whereas a constitutional amendment would have to stand.

They argued that "lame duck" members had not used their influence, following repudiation at the hands of the voters, in a harmful way. To this the veteran of the house, Rep. Cooper, republican, Wisconsin, took sharp exception, saying he had known men, repudiated by the voters, who had come back and "sold their honor" during the short session.

Washington, March 9.—The house today defeated an amendment to the Norris-White "lame duck" constitutional amendment which would have nullified the purposes of the measure. The amendment, by Rep. Chindblom, republican, Illinois, would have stricken out the provision changing inauguration and beginning of congress to January. There was no record vote.

However, a 169 to 99 vote against Rep. Tucker's amendment, requiring ratification of the Norris-White measure by state conventions, indicated the bitter fight being waged against the "lame duck" amendment, which requires a two-thirds vote to pass.

GETS SHOCK WHILE TRYING OUT MOTOR

BELIEVED TO BE LESTER HENDERSHOT OF PITTSBURGH

REPUTED INVENTOR OF "FUEL-LESS MOTOR" GETTING WIDE PUBLICITY

Washington, March 9.—(UP)—A man listed as Lester Hendershot, 30, of Pittsburgh, was reported in a serious condition at emergency hospital here today from what he described as an electric shock received while experimenting with a motor. It is believed he is the Lester Hendershot of Pittsburgh who invented the "fuelless motor" which has been receiving wide publicity.

The patient was admitted to the hospital Tuesday, unable to move his arms or legs or use his palate. Doctors said the members were paralyzed. After five hours' treatment the man recovered sufficiently to say he had been experimenting with a motor and believed 2,000 volts of electricity passed through his body.

Today the patient could eat, but nerves in his arms and legs still were partly paralyzed. No one was permitted in his room except the doctor, who said Hendershot merely indicated he was an electrician and made no reference to a "fuelless motor."

Hendershot did, however, give his address, where he and his backer, J. Barr Peat of Pennsylvania, registered last Sunday.

Columbia Flying Field, Havana, March 9.—(UP)—Charles A. Levine, Miss Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," and Wilmer Stultz, pilot, left for West Palm Beach, Fla., at 9:13 a. m. today in Levine's Bellanca monoplane.

ATTENDANCE OF OVER 4,000 AT SESSIONS TODAY

DELEGATES FROM MINNESOTA, WISCONSIN, MICHIGAN, DAKOTAS, IOWA

INCREASE OF 15 PER CENT BUSINESS RECORDED OVER THE PAST YEAR

Minneapolis, March 9.—(UP)—More than 4,000 creamery operators dairy farmers, county agents and others interested in dairy farming gathered here for the sessions of the Land O' Lakes Creameries' annual convention.

Delegates were in attendance from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, North Dakota, South Dakota and Iowa.

In 1927 the dairy business totaled $46,315,000, an increase of 15 per cent over the preceding year, delegates to a preliminary meeting Wednesday were told.

Preliminary reports showed that 470 carloads of sweet cream were shipped from the creameries, and that 82 cities consumed 84,000,000 pounds of butter.

Fifty per cent of the butter was churned in Minneapolis, 40 per cent in Duluth, and 10 per cent in Chicago.

The convention will continue through today.

John Brandt, president of the association, was a speaker yesterday. His address dealt largely with the organization of the association seven years ago, and he outlined its growth step by step.

The address of Lloyd S. Tenny, chief, bureau of agricultural economics, was read by Thomas G. Stitts, agricultural economist, U. S. department of agriculture. "Reasons for success of co-operative dairy marketing characterizations," was the topic of the address.

"Co-operative marketing is simply one way of doing business, and therefore it requires the same skill in administration and management, and the same sound financial policies as any private corporation," he declared.

"The dairy products co-operatives are one of the most important groups of farmers' business organizations, in number of associations, in value of products handled and in membership," Tenny said. "Reports on agriculture show that in 1927, 2,479 co-operative dairy associations in the United States did a business of $640,000,000. That is an increase of 140 per cent over that done by the co-operative dairy organizations in 1915. The most conspicuous growth in the marketing of dairy products co-operatively has been in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa."

"Reliable statistics indicate that over 75 per cent of the creamery butter coming from these states is manufactured co-operatively. This section is not only the largest butter producing section in the world, but it is also the most important in the production of large amounts of fine butter."

BUTTERMILK COMPETITION PRIZES

Minneapolis, March 9.—H. Erkjer of the Bertha Co-operative Creamery Assn., Bertha, Todd county, Minnesota, won first grand prize in the buttermaking competition judged at the Land O' Lakes annual meeting yesterday. His score was 98.55 per cent.

Other grand prize winners were: J. Jacobson, Almore, second, score 98.39, and Fred Ulman, Janesville, third, score 98.29.

Included in the district winners was: John Erickson, Swanville, score 97.58—Little Falls.

Minneapolis, March 9.—(UP)—Land O' Lakes dairy men closed the largest convention in the history of their organization today. About 4,000 persons were in attendance at the various sessions.

W. G. Coffey, dean, college of agriculture, U. of M., was the principal speaker of the day. Speaking on "The Relationship of the Three C's"—community development, co-operation and college, he stressed that the units contribute to success in the development of farming industries.

They will make trips to the Trading Post, Waukon, Isles, Murray Beach and other points. It will be christened The Blue Goose. It will carry all safety devices. NORTH OAK LAWN

Mrs. H. A. Olson has been ill. Ole Norgard and Theo. Sather were in Brainerd Tuesday.

One of the most ambitious and energetic campaigns for the nomination for county commissioner at the June primaries has just been launched by Clarence Norgard an up-and-at-tem young farmer from this immediate vicinity. Mr. Norgard has been before the public in various offices for the past several years and his many friends feel that he is entirely worthy of their support.

John Shefflen has laid off part of his crew.

And that reminds us that there are rumors afloat concerning the opening of the Omaha mine. As far as we know these are merely rumors unless P. Bunyan decides to open the blacksmith shop in order that the Blue Ox may be adequately shod.

Miss Petterriens went to Brainerd Friday.

Mrs. Dan Peterson, Oak Lawn township chairman of the county farm women's organization attended a meeting of the Willing Oak Leaves club at the home of Mrs. Ostby in West Oak Lawn on Tuesday, March 6. This was a very enthusiastic meeting of this most energetic club attended by eighteen of their twenty members. They are planning a spring frock sale and luncheon to be held in Brainerd on March 17, at a place that will be announced later.

The Ford car belonging to Andrew Shefflen was wrecked Saturday night when it collided with another car on the Oak street road near the two mile corner. It was reported that one car was without lights. It seems to us the height of folly to try to negotiate the highways at night and during a snowstorm without lights. Luckily no one was seriously injured.

SUMMER RESORT ADVERTISING

R. A. HANNAH of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association takes up a pertinent subject when he discusses the developing of more summer resort advertising.

During 1924, 1,441,101 tourists visited Minnesota and spent $82,405,480 here according to H. C. Hotaling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association. What percentage of that amount found its way into the hands of the printers, Mr. Hotaling is unable to say, but he does believe that the printers of Minnesota are not getting all they could and should get out of this new industry that has grown up in recent years.

In the first place, there are comparatively few Minnesota resort owners who have booklets advertising their places of business. There are 976 resorts in the state according to the records of the Ten Thousand Lake Association and of that number only about 150 have advertising booklets for distribution. This means that the printers of the state are getting about one-sixth the amount of business it might be possible to get from this source.

It is also noticeable in the office of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association that there are few towns and cities throughout the state that are represented by creditable booklets. The towns which have had the foresight and good business judgment to get out attractive booklets are cashing in on the publicity work which the state tourist organization is doing.

The Ten Thousand Lakes Association in its publicity work performs two important services. First, through its national advertising in newspapers, magazines, and various publicity undertakings, it brings the advantages of the state to the attention of the nation in a general way. Then through the inquiries that are received from its publicity and advertising it gives to its members a live list of persons actually interested in Minnesota. The association, being a state-wide organization, can only devote its work to the state as a whole. Its booklets must be of a general nature. Its duty is to sell the state and let the individual communities sell themselves.

There are some communities that are now doing this. They have attractive booklets which they send to the list of inquirers provided by the Ten Thousand Lakes Association and as a result they are getting publicity throughout the land. Last year this list contained more than 10,000 names. All were good prospects.

Secretary Hotaling has urged upon resort owners repeatedly that they have attractive booklets printed to be sent to persons writing to the association concerning vacations in Minnesota. These suggestions have had some effect as more and better resort booklets are appearing each year. There should be many more than there are now and Mr. Hotaling believes that printers in the resort regions could develop considerable more business than they are now getting. Resorts use letterheads, envelopes and other printed forms the same as any other business institutions and the printer who goes after this class of business should find it profitable.

The tourist business in addition to bringing about the construction of many new resorts has also resulted in a great amount of lakeshore being placed on sale and where such projects are under way there is always an opportunity for the local printer to develop some business.

THE PEOPLE'S SOVEREIGNTY INVOLVED

A CHANGE in the date of assembly of congress and of the time when newly elected presidents and members of the house and senate go actively into office, if proposed by congress and ratified by the states, will carry no absolute guarantee that our national legislative body will give a better account of itself in shaping national affairs, says the Minneapolis Tribune editorially.

There is no form or feature of government that constitutes a substitute for quality of governmental personnel. Whether any government is good, bad or mediocre depends on the action and service of those who, by self-assumption, by appointment or by election, run the government. We may very easily expect too much improvement in government, therefore, if the constitution is altered to do away with so-called "lame duck" sessions of congress.

Granting that all this is true, a rational working of the democratic representative principle of government requires some such change as is proposed. Under circumstances as they have been and are now the term of a person elected to the house or senate in November of one year begins on March 4 of the following year, but unless the President calls a special session for some date between March 4 and the first Monday in December he does not go into active service in congress till the latter date, or 13 months following his election. To be more specific, those elected next November will not hold seats and help in legislative business until December, 1929, if the new head of the executive branch of government does not elect to call congress in special session. A corollary of this is that members defeated for re-election go on serving from the first Monday of December until March 4 despite the rejection of them at the polls by the voters.

The proposal is to start the new chief executive and the new legislative personnel off actively on the job in January following the November election. The thesis is—and it is a sound one—that in this way the will of the people as expressed at the polls will be more promptly registered in the White House and in congress. Whether or not the people would benefit by this change, it remains that their sovereignty would have the measure of recognition that is its due in theory and in practice.

The conditions of transportation and of accessibility, or lack of it, to Washington, which made the present arrangement rational in the early days, have long since passed. It is now possible for most of the members of congress to reach Washington from their home states within 24 hours, and for all of them to arrive on the ground within three or four days. "Lame duck" members of congress, though they be preferable in ability and otherwise to their newly elected successors, are nevertheless political anachronisms in a correct conception of the representative principle of our government.

THE Baudette Region says that Lindbergh can do everything a bird can—except lay an egg. Yet he is said to have laid a nest egg of $225,000, says the Minneapolis Journal.

ROBERT CONDIT, the man who hopes to fly to Venus with a sky rocket for motive power, has been waiting some time for the proper atmospheric conditions.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

The Balkan Puzzle

IF YOU will look over a map of Europe you will see three great peninsulas jutting into the seas that wash the south shores of the continent. The southernmost and farthest east of the three is known as the Balkan peninsula. It comprises Turkey in Europe, Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria, Montenegro, eastern Roumelia, Rumania and other lesser divisions. Incidentally, that same peninsula has for a thousand years been the hotbed of revolt, intrigue and violence.

No other district of the same size contains so many races, nor so many people who are so widely different in religion, politics, customs and characteristics. This jumble of nationalities dwells side by side, yet never blending. Turk, Greek, Bulgar, Albanian and a half score of other peoples live shoulder to shoulder, yet each sharply divided from all the others. The Turk is the bully of the peninsula. The other races spent centuries fighting and intriguing against each other, but have merged their various difficulties in a common hatred against Turkey. The Turks, strongest of all Mahomet's followers, became masters of the peninsula in the thirteenth century, being at that time the foremost military power of the world.

Most of the Balkan states are Christian. For this reason, as well as because of the frequent plots and revolts against the sultan's government, Turkey has, from time to time, punished her rebellious subjects by wholesale slaughter and outrage. The Armenian and Macedonian massacres have, at one period and another, aroused the horror of all civilized countries.

In May, 1876, Bulgaria and Herzegovina (then Turkish provinces) started one of the periodical insurrections. The peasants of the Batak district of Bulgaria were preparing to rise when suddenly a large Turkish force under Achmet Agha appeared, surrounded the town of Batak and commanded the natives to yield; promising that not one of them should be harmed. With a credulity unusual in people having experience with the "Unspeaking Turk," the patriots obeyed. Then the massacre began. The prisoners—men, women and children alike—were slaughtered like sheep. Some took refuge in a church. It was burned over their heads. Achmet Agha received a decoration from the sultan for this great killing.

At news of the outrage the six great European powers sent a formal protest to the sultan. He had, earlier, promised reforms, but had disregarded his pledges. Now he gave the envoys no satisfaction whatever. This was the chance for which Russia had waited. Twenty years earlier Turkey (backed by England, France and Sardinia) had beaten Russia in the Crimea. The wound still rankled. Russia, moreover, had for a long time yearned to absorb her eastern rival or to annex as much of the latter's territory as possible. The other nations, however, had no idea of allowing the "balance of power" to be thus shifted, and Russia had been able to find no occasion to promote her schemes. Now, under pretext of avenging the injuries inflicted on Balkan Christians, the czar declared war (1877) against Turkey.

A Russian army crossed the Danube June 27. On July 13 General Gourko made the difficult passage of the Balkan mountains and advanced on Adrianople, but was driven back. In December he recrossed the Balkan range, vanquishing a Turkish army of 32,000 at Shipka pass (January 9, 1878). Osman Pasha, the sultan's best general, meantime had held his own against the invaders and had at length occupied the city of Plevna. Here he endured for twenty weeks a memorable siege against superior numbers, but was in the end forced to surrender. With the fall of Plevna the Turkish cause weakened. Philipopolis and Adrianopolis were taken, and the Russian armies marched unchecked on to Constantinople.

Here, however, with the fruits of victory within their very grasp, the conquerors were halted by the powers. The old menace of "destroying the balance of power" seemed about to be fulfilled, and the Russians were forbidden to enter the Turkish capital.

By the peace treaty of San Stefano, however, Rumanian Bessarabia and part of Armenia were ceded to Russia. Bulgaria was made a principality with home rule; Rumania, Serbia and Montenegro were declared free countries, and Bosnia and Herzegovina came under Austro-Hungarian sway. So ended the Russo-Turkish war of 1877-1878. Turkey, far from profiting by her lesson, continued to oppress her Christian provinces. In 1895 massacres of Christians in Armenia, and even in Constantinople, horrified civilization. Christians in Crete revolted, by way of showing their disapproval, and asked Greece to annex their island. A Greek military force was sent to Crete. Turkey at once declared war, thrashed Greece in one brief campaign and wrung from the beaten country a heavy war indemnity.

The Balkan peninsula still teems with plot, counterplot, intrigue, misrule and discontent. The Balkan problem will, perhaps, never be solved.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Is He Jealous?

Do not confuse jealousy with love. It is born of suspicion, distrust and selfishness. The very suspicious, distrustful person is naturally secretive.

penetrates
Sharpness, Lines to Left with T Bars Close Top of Bar. The signs to follow, of selfishness, domineering qualities and lack of taste, he will be dangerously jealous. Closed and looped s's indicate secretiveness, but they may not be combined with other signs of selfishness. They may indicate in some writing an ability to hold the tongue and to conserve money, so be just in your judgment, and look for other signs combined.

An interesting sign of suspicion is an angular, contracted, p, h, m, or d with the tops of the curves squeezed together, with the curve missing at the base.

The more the terminals of words curve back to the left, the more the capitals are wrapped up in themselves, the more self-centered will the individual be. And it is the self-centered person who is jealous, sensitive, suspiciously imaginative. The writing full of sharp, contracted narrow letters is of course more critical than the rounded writing with comparative width between the strokes, but here again, this criticism may be constructive.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

"I Could Cry Over My Skin"

No Need to Say that Now.

If you have tried "everything" for your pimples, blackheads or eczema and want to know what it is to get something that really works—then let your skin know the magic touch of sulphur combined with menthol. Nothing more amazing than how sulphur clears the skin,—and as sulphur clears, menthol heals. As combined in Rowles Mentho Sulphur, the two make an astonishing skin corrective and builder. Pimples dry up overnight. Blackheads and coarse pores vanish in a few days. And as for eczema—even the most burning or itching case soon yields. Relief from the burning or itching follows immediately upon application.

Rowles Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

SUMMER RESORT ADVERTISING

R. A. HANNAH of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association takes up a pertinent subject when he discusses the developing of more summer resort advertising.

During 1924, 1,441,101 tourists visited Minnesota and spent $82,405,480 here according to H. C. Hotaling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association. What percentage of that amount found its way into the hands of the printers, Mr. Hotaling is unable to say, but he does believe that the printers of Minnesota are not getting all they could and should get out of this new industry that has grown up in recent years.

In the first place, there are comparatively few Minnesota resort owners who have booklets advertising their places of business. There are 976 resorts in the state according to the records of the Ten Thousand Lake Association and of that number only about 150 have advertising booklets for distribution. This means that the printers of the state are getting about one-sixth the amount of business it might be possible to get from this source.

It is also noticeable in the office of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association that there are few towns and cities throughout the state that are represented by creditable booklets. The towns which have had the foresight and good business judgment to get out attractive booklets are cashing in on the publicity work which the state tourist organization is doing.

The Ten Thousand Lakes Association in its publicity work performs two important services. First, through its national advertising in newspapers, magazines, and various publicity undertakings, it brings the advantages of the state to the attention of the nation in a general way. Then through the inquiries that are received from its publicity and advertising it gives to its members a live list of persons actually interested in Minnesota. The association, being a state-wide organization, can only devote its work to the state as a whole. Its booklets must be of a general nature. Its duty is to sell the state and let the individual communities sell themselves.

There are some communities that are now doing this. They have attractive booklets which they send to the list of inquirers provided by the Ten Thousand Lakes Association and as a result they are getting publicity throughout the land. Last year this list contained more than 10,000 names. All were good prospects.

Secretary Hotaling has urged upon resort owners repeatedly that they have attractive booklets printed to be sent to persons writing to the association concerning vacations in Minnesota. These suggestions have had some effect as more and better resort booklets are appearing each year. There should be many more than there are now and Mr. Hotaling believes that printers in the resort regions could develop considerable more business than they are now getting. Resorts use letterheads, envelopes and other printed forms the same as any other business institutions and the printer who goes after this class of business should find it profitable.

The tourist business in addition to bringing about the construction of many new resorts has also resulted in a great amount of lakeshore being placed on sale and where such projects are under way there is always an opportunity for the local printer to develop some business.

THE PEOPLE'S SOVEREIGNTY INVOLVED

A CHANGE in the date of assembly of congress and of the time when newly elected presidents and members of the house and senate go actively into office, if proposed by congress and ratified by the states, will carry no absolute guarantee that our national legislative body will give a better account of itself in shaping national affairs, says the Minneapolis Tribune editorially.

There is no form or feature of government that constitutes a substitute for quality of governmental personnel. Whether any government is good, bad or mediocre depends on the action and service of those who, by self-assumption, by appointment or by election, run the government. We may very easily expect too much improvement in government, therefore, if the constitution is altered to do away with so-called "lame duck" sessions of congress.

Granting that all this is true, a rational working of the democratic representative principle of government requires some such change as is proposed. Under circumstances as they have been and are now the term of a person elected to the house or senate in November of one year begins on March 4 of the following year, but unless the President calls a special session for some date between March 4 and the first Monday in December he does not go into active service in congress till the latter date, or 13 months following his election. To be more specific, those elected next November will not hold seats and help in legislative business until December, 1929, if the new head of the executive branch of government does not elect to call congress in special session. A corollary of this is that members defeated for re-election go on serving from the first Monday of December until March 4 despite the rejection of them at the polls by the voters.

The proposal is to start the new chief executive and the new legislative personnel off actively on the job in January following the November election. The thesis is—and it is a sound one—that in this way the will of the people as expressed at the polls will be more promptly registered in the White House and in congress. Whether or not the people would benefit by this change, it remains that their sovereignty would have the measure of recognition that is its due in theory and in practice.

The conditions of transportation and of accessibility, or lack of it, to Washington, which made the present arrangement rational in the early days, have long since passed. It is now possible for most of the members of congress to reach Washington from their home states within 24 hours, and for all of them to arrive on the ground within three or four days. "Lame duck" members of congress, though they be preferable in ability and otherwise to their newly elected successors, are nevertheless political anachronisms in a correct conception of the representative principle of our government.

The Balkan Puzzle

If you will look over a map of Europe you will see three great peninsulas jutting into the seas that wash the south shores of the continent. The southernmost and farthest east of the three is known as the Balkan peninsula. It comprises Turkey in Europe, Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria, Montenegro, eastern Roumelia, Rumania and other lesser divisions. Incidentally, that same peninsula has for a thousand years been the hotbed of revolt, intrigue and violence.

No other district of the same size contains so many races, nor so many people who are so widely different in religion, politics, customs and characteristics. This jumble of nationalities dwells side by side, yet never blending. Turk, Greek, Bulgarian, Albanian and a half score of other peoples live shoulder to shoulder, yet each sharply divided from all the others. The Turk is the bully of the peninsula. The other races spent centuries fighting and intriguing against each other, but have merged their various difficulties in a common hatred against Turkey. The Turks, strongest of all Mahomet's followers, became masters of the peninsula in the Thirteenth century, being at that time the foremost military power of the world.

Most of the Balkan states are Christian. For this reason, as well as because of the frequent plots and revolts against the sultan's government, Turkey has, from time to time, punished her rebellious subjects by wholesale slaughter and outrage. The Armenian and Macedonian massacres have, at one period and another, aroused the horror of all civilized countries.

In May, 1876, Bulgaria and Herzegovina (then Turkish provinces) started one of the periodical insurrections. The peasants of the Batak district of Bulgaria were preparing to rise when suddenly a large Turkish force under Achmet Agha appeared, surrounded the town of Batak and commanded the natives to yield; promising that not one of them should be harmed. With a credulity unusual in people having experience with the "Unspeaking Turk," the patriots obeyed. Then the massacre began. The prisoners—men, women and children alike—were slaughtered like sheep. Some took refuge in a church. It was burned over their heads. Achmet Agha received a decoration from the sultan for this great killing.

At news of the outrage the six great European powers sent a formal protest to the sultan. He had, earlier, promised reforms, but had disregarded his pledges. Now he gave the envoys no satisfaction whatever. This was the chance for which Russia had waited. Twenty years earlier Turkey (backed by England, France and Sardinia) had beaten Russia in the Crimea. The wound still rankled. Russia, moreover, had for a long time yearned to absorb her eastern rival or to annex as much of the latter's territory as possible. The other nations, however, had no idea of allowing the "balance of power" to be thus shifted, and Russia had been able to find no occasion to promote her schemes. Now, under pretext of avenging the injuries inflicted on Balkan Christians, the czar declared war (1877) against Turkey.

A Russian army crossed the Danube June 27. On July 13 General Gourko made the difficult passage of the Balkan mountains and advanced on Adrianople, but was driven back. In December he recrossed the Balkan range, vanquishing a Turkish army of 32,000 at Shipka pass (January 9, 1878). Osman Pasha, the sultan's best general, meantime had held his own against the invaders and had at length occupied the city of Plevna. Here he endured for twenty weeks a memorable siege against superior numbers, but was in the end forced to surrender. With the fall of Plevna the Turkish cause weakened. Philippopolis and Adrianople were taken, and the Russian armies marched unchecked on to Constantinople.

Here, however, with the fruits of victory within their very grasp, the conquerors were halted by the powers. The old menace of "destroying the balance of power" seemed about to be fulfilled, and the Russians were forbidden to enter the Turkish capital.

By the peace treaty of San Stefano, however, Rumanian Bessarabia and part of Armenia were ceded to Russia. Bulgaria was made a principality with home rule; Rumania, Serbia and Montenegro were declared free countries, and Bosnia and Herzegovina came under Austro-Hungarian sway. So ended the Russo-Turkish war of 1877-1878. Turkey, far from profiting by her lesson, continued to oppress her Christian provinces. In 1895 massacres of Christians in Armenia, and even in Constantinople, horrified civilization. Christians in Crete revolted, by way of showing their disapproval, and asked Greece to annex their island. A Greek military force was sent to Crete. Turkey at once declared war, thrashed Greece in one brief campaign and wrung from the beaten country a heavy war indemnity.

The Balkan peninsula still teems with plot, counterplot, intrigue, misrule and discontent. The Balkan problem will, perhaps, never be solved.

Is He Jealous?

Do not confuse jealousy with love. It is born of suspicion, distrust and selfishness. The very suspicious, distrustful person is naturally secretive in his self and if his writing is combined with the signs to follow, of selfishness, domineering qualities and lack of taste, he will be dangerously jealous. Closed and looped s's indicate secretiveness, but they may not be combined with other signs of selfishness. They may indicate in some writing an ability to hold the tongue and to conserve money, so be just in your judgment, and look for other signs combined.

An interesting sign of suspicion is an angular, contracted, p, h, m, or n with the tops of the curves squeezed together, with the curve missing at the base.

The more the terminals of words curve back to the left, the more the capitals are wrapped up in themselves, the more self-centered will the individual be. And it is the self-centered person who is jealous, sensitive, suspiciously imaginative. The writing full of sharp, contracted narrow letters is of course more critical than the rounded writing with comparative width between the strokes, but here again, this criticism may be constructive.

Note—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

SHARKEY FAVORED TO WIN BY K. O. OVER YOUNG RISKO

LITHUANIAN HAS A GOOD FIGHT IN SYSTEM

NO REASON WHY HE SHOULD NOT DELIVER WHEN HE MEETS RISKO

TRUE THAT RISKO HAS BEEN KNOCKED OUT BUT ONCE IN BRIEF CAREER

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, March 9.—Jack Sharkey, splendidly trained at 190 pounds should win by a knockout over Johnny Risko next Monday night.

The Lithuanian has a real good fight somewhere in his system, and there is no reason why he should not deliver it when he meets the rotund Cleveland heavyweight.

Risko, after a period of comparative inactivity, does not shape up as Sharkey's equal in his New York training. Slow of foot and fist with only the indomitable grit of a bulldog to carry him through, Johnny should be comparatively easy for Jack.

It is true that Risko has been knocked out but once during a fairly active if brief career, and then it was Chuck Wiggins, a third rater, who delivered the coup de grace. It is equally true that Sharkey's knockout record is not impressive.

Nevertheless, the Lithuanian, with every advantage of size, speed, boxing skill and backing, should be able to stop the former baker's boy within the limit of 15 rounds.

If Sharkey does not knock out Risko, the sign of relief which will go up from Tex Rickard's office in Madison Square Garden will meet another mighty sign of satisfaction rolling up from Gene Tunney at Miami Beach.

A knockout victory for the Bostonian will mean a heavyweight battle for the championship in June, with Sharkey as one of the participants. Charley Harvey, Tom Heeney's American manager, possesses an agreement whereby the New Zealander is to meet the winner of next Monday night's fight. But the date for such a meeting has not been agreed upon and it is dollars to doughnuts that if Sharkey beats Risko in spectacular fashion, Jack will be named challenger for Tunney's title.

Any other outcome of the Sharkey-Risko fight will further complicate the heavyweight situation, and may mean that Rickard and Tunney will have to abandon their plans for a championship contest in June.

Sharkey has come to New York for his final workouts, and the first of these was impressive. For one thing, the Lithuanian is at a lower poundage than he attained for his fights with Dempsey and Heeney.

"I am right this time," Jack insists. "I weighed 188½ for Jimmy Maloney and was at my best that night."

All Sharkey needs to do now is to keep his mind on his work when he gets into the ring with Risko. Jack has a way of letting his mind wander, while his opponent beats a tattoo on his tummy. A few too many tattoos and the Lithuanian folds up for the night.

The slow-moving Risko will hurt Sharkey a plenty, if Jack is careless. Sharkey's mental attitude in the ring is the one concern of those who are backing him at 3 to 1 to win Monday night.

SPORTSMATTER

by FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Discovery of a "Red" plot behind recent disturbances in the sports world is announced by our Harrisburg, Pa., correspondent, Mr. Joe Carupa, whose heart, as everyone knows, is in the welfare of sport, whether amateur or professional. Mr. Carupa's latest letter follows:

Harrisburg, Pa.
Sir:—I will now write you to give you the straight stuff which I have just obtained on a situation that is likely to get serious unless we people on the inside do something about it.

The situation is that there is a Red plot to undermine sports so that they can make us all go Bolshevik. I do not quite get the connection myself, but the guy that told me this knows, and it is the goods.

Maybe when you read in the papers that a couple of mile runners are not on speaking terms because they crashed at a turn you think they are just a couple of bum sports. Well, we won't argue about that; but that is not all.

Maybe when you read that the people who are trying to jazz up baseball by making a rule that the batter can run either way when he bunts are a couple of saps, if there is as many as a couple of them. Well, we won't argue about that either; but you don't get the real idea.

Maybe when you read as I did in the paper that the people of Mexico City where Paulino Uzcudun recently flattened the Chilean diving champion, Romero Rojas, says the Basque was gypped in losing the decision to George Godfrey at Los Angeles, they are just being themselves. Well, I can't tell, but I can tell you what is behind it and that is a Red plot.

They figure that prices for sports will go higher and higher and that sport itself will get lower and lower and that finally people will not go to see sports and that then the amateurs won't get their expense accounts and the professionals will not get their purses and the managers will not get their split and the sports writers will not get their rake-off and there will be a big army of unemployed like yourself and the people will go Bolshevik and overthrow the government.

You can figure this out for yourself if you only stop to ask if there really could be wrestlers and Phil Scotts and Paolinos and such in the sport world unless somebody was trying to put something over.

This may seem to you to imply that some of the leading promoters and amateur athletic people and the lawn tennis authorities and the people who do the New York Giants' baseball trading for them are in on the plot, but I have not got things figured out that far yet.

Hoping you will publish this and help stop the Red plot.

Respectfully,
JOE CARUPA.

Mojave Wells, Cal., March 9.—Thirty-three miles of dry, hot and sparsely settled desert country today was ahead of the athletes running from Los Angeles to New York for $48,000 in prizes offered by C. C. Pyle, sports promoter.

Many athletes choose not to start today, the desert having sapped their strength. The next stop is Bagdad.

Yesterday the runners covered the 31 miles from Barstow to Mojave Wells.

The walkers who believe they will be able to reach New York with their heel and toe art as quickly as the trotters gained on the runners Thursday.

The heat of the desert would not allow full speed, and the marathoners had to slow down to a shuffle that was but little faster than a walk.

Arthur Newton, who wears the flag of England, a pioneer marathoner of South Africa, lead the field. He traveled the distance in 4:48.

Newton also assumed the lead in the race in elapsed time, on which basis the prize money will be divided. He has taken 24 hours, 28 minutes and 30 seconds to cover the 153.7 miles from Los Angeles.

Original plans called for a longer run yesterday. The racers were scheduled to run to Ludlow, but because of the strain of desert running, Pyle changed the distance.

Earl Dilks, Pennsylvania, finished the lap in second place in 5:13:50 while Olli Wattinen, Finland, was third in 5:16:55.

Wattinen has assumed second place in the elapsed time standings. His time is 24:30:37.

There were 155 of the original 250 runners on the road today. After leaving Ludlow, the caravan faced a desolate 30-mile stretch inhabited only by jackrabbits.

Augusta, Ga., March 9.—(U.P.)—Vic Aldridge, veteran pitcher obtained from the Pirates, today was the principal source of worry to Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants.

Nothing has been heard from "The Hoosier schoolmaster" since the Giants sent him a contract calling for $16,000, $1,000 more than he received at Pittsburgh.

"If Aldridge doesn't report soon, we will withdraw the $1,000 increase," McGraw said.

Ty Cobb has received permission from Connie Mack to workout with the Giants until the Athletics arrive here for a sreise March 16.

LITTLE FALLS IS GIVEN AID IN AVIATION FIELD

St. Paul, March 9.—(U.P.)—Minnesota will be the pioneer state in aviation landing fields, it was indicated today in an announcement by Col. L. H.

Von Elm Will Not Turn Pro

GEORGE VON ELM, former national amateur golf champion, denied reports that he would sign under the management of Jack Kearns, fight promoter, as a professional for a golf tour. Von Elm insisted he would never consider abandoning the amateur ranks for the professional.

While Kearns insisted the star linksman was considering seriously his offer, Von Elm declared the suggestion had been made only in a "kidding way" and that he would not for a minute think of making such a change. Kearns had declared previously that plenty of money could be made out of professional golf if it were given "the proper ballyhoo."

Kearns brought the name of Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, professional, into the proposition as a possible teammate for Von Elm.

From Kearns' camp also came information that El Paso, Texas, would be the scene of Von Elm's first golf appearance after winding up his amateur career in the Long Beach open tournament. It was declared arrangements for the El Paso opening of the professional tour already had been started.

Earlier Von Elm had been reported as confirming his acceptance of Kearns' proposition, and a close business associate of Kearns insisted the agreement had been entered into. In the face of the golfer's denials it was declared Von Elm desired to withhold any announcement temporarily, but he also denied that such an allegation was true.

Von Elm insisted golf was but an honored pastime with him and that, paired with his private business, would prevent him in spite of any "million-dollar" offer from going into professional golf.

George Von Elm.

SHARKEY FAVORED TO WIN BY K. O. OVER YOUNG RISKO

LITHUANIAN HAS A GOOD FIGHT IN SYSTEM

NO REASON WHY HE SHOULD NOT DELIVER WHEN HE MEETS RISKO

TRUE THAT RISKO HAS BEEN KNOCKED OUT BUT ONCE IN BRIEF CAREER

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, March 9.—Jack Sharkey, splendidly trained at 190 pounds should win by a knockout over Johnny Risko next Monday night.

The Lithuanian has a real good fight somewhere in his system, and there is no reason why he should not deliver it when he meets the rotund Cleveland heavyweight.

Risko, after a period of comparative inactivity, does not shape up as Sharkey's equal in his New York training. Slow of foot and fist with only the indomitable grit of a bulldog to carry him through, Johnny should be comparatively easy for Jack.

It is true that Risko has been knocked out but once during a fairly active if brief career, and then it was Chuck Wiggins, a third rater, who delivered the coup de grace. It is equally true that Sharkey's knockout record is not impressive.

Nevertheless, the Lithuanian, with every advantage of size, speed, boxing skill and backing, should be able to stop the former baker's boy within the limit of 15 rounds.

If Sharkey does not knock out Risko, the sigh of relief which will go up from Tex Rickard's office in Madison Square Garden will meet another mighty sigh of satisfaction rolling up from Gene Tunney at Miami Beach.

A knockout victory for the Bostonian will mean a heavyweight battle for the championship in June, with Sharkey as one of the participants. Charley Harvey, Tom Heene's American manager, possesses an agreement whereby the New Zealander is to meet the winner of next Monday night's fight. But the date for such a meeting has not been agreed upon and it is dollars to doughnuts that if Sharkey beats Risko in spectacular fashion, Jack will be named challenger for Tunney's title.

Any other outcome of the Sharkey-Risko fight will further complicate the heavyweight situation, and may mean that Rickard and Tunney will have to abandon their plans for a championship contest in June.

Sharkey has come to New York for his final workouts, and the first of these was impressive. For one thing, the Lithuanian is at a lower poundage than he attained for his fights with Dempsey and Heene.

"I am right this time," Jack insists. "I weighed 188½ for Jimmy Maloney and was at my best that night."

All Sharkey needs to do now is to keep his mind on his work when he gets into the ring with Risko. Jack has a way of letting his mind wander, while his opponent beats a tattoo on his tummy. A few too many tattoos and the Lithuanian folds up for the night.

The slow-moving Risko will hurt Sharkey a plenty, if Jack is careless. Sharkey's mental attitude in the ring is the one concern of those who are backing him at 3 to 1 to win Monday night.

Fort Meyers, Fla., March 9.—(UP)—Not so cocky today after their 14 to 4 drubbing at the hands of the Baltimore Orioles yesterday, the Philadelphia Athletics went out to stop the St. Louis Cardinals, fresh from two straight victories over American league teams.

Two Athletic rookies, Outfielder George Hass and Second Baseman Richards, loaned to the Orioles for the day, played a prominent part in Baltimore victory.

Miller Harris, young Texas outfielder, today joined the Orioles for the trial.

SPORTSMATTER

Discovery of a "Red" plot behind recent disturbances in the sports world is announced by our Harrisburg, Pa., correspondent, Mr. Joe Carupa, whose heart, as everyone knows, is in the welfare of sport, whether amateur or professional. Mr. Carupa's latest letter follows:

Harrisburg, Pa.
Sir:—I will now write you to give you the straight stuff which I have just obtained on a situation that is likely to get serious unless we people on the inside do something about it.

The situation is that there is a Red plot to undermine sports so that they can make us all go Bolshevik. I do not quite get the connection myself, but the guy that told me this knows, and it is the goods.

Maybe when you read in the papers that a couple of mile runners are not on speaking terms because they crashed at a turn you think they are just a couple of bum sports. Well, we won't argue about that; but that is not all.

Maybe when you read that the people who are trying to jazz up baseball by making a rule that the batter can run either way when he bunts are a couple of saps, if there is as many as a couple of them. Well, we won't argue about that either; but you don't get the real idea.

Maybe when you read as I did in the paper that the people of Mexico City where Paulino Uzcudun recently flattened the Chilean diving champion, Romero Rojas, says the Basque was gyped in losing the decision to George Godfrey at Los Angeles, they are just being themselves. Well, I can't tell, but I can tell you what is behind it and that is a Red plot.

They figure that prices for sports will go higher and higher and that sport itself will get lower and lower and that finally people will not go to see sports and that then the amateurs won't get their expense accounts and the professionals will not get their purses and the managers will not get their split and the sports writers will not get their rake-off and there will be a big army of unemployed like yourself and the people will go Bolshevik and overthrow the government.

You can figure this out for yourself if you only stop to ask if there really could be wrestlers and Phil Scotts and Paulinos and such in the sport world unless somebody was trying to put something over.

This may seem to you to imply that some of the leading promoters and amateur athletic people and the lawn tennis authorities and the people who do the New York Giants' baseball trading for them are in on the plot, but I have not got things figured out that far yet.

Hoping you will publish this and help stop the Red plot.

ROCKNE WILL SUPPORT POLICIES OF REPUBLICANS

ISSUES STATEMENT AS TO HIS CANDIDACY FOR U. S. SENATE

AGRICULTURAL RELIEF, LAKES WATERWAY, LAW ENFORCEMENT, ETC.

St. Paul, March 9.—(UP)—A. J. Rockne, candidate for U. S. senator, declared today that he would support the platforms and policies of the republican party in his race for office.

In a statement issued today the candidate said in part:

"As a candidate for the republican nomination for U. S. senator I wish to state that as a republican I shall stand upon and support the platforms and policies of the republican party as the same will be declared and expressed at its conventions, both state and national, now soon to be held.

"This is my response to the many inquiries which I have recently received from all parts of the state concerning my views and attitudes on several public questions now uppermost in the minds of the public. 3 Drifting Helplessly in Fishing Sloop are Saved by Coast Guard

Chicago, March 9.—(UP)—Three men who had drifted helplessly in a disabled fishing sloop for more than 24 hours on Lake Michigan were rescued today by Captain J. B. Anderson of the coast guard station.

George Camalich, owner of the sloop, said their engine became disabled yesterday en route to fishing grounds. The men were little worse for their experience despite a rainstorm last night. They were found drifting outward, 12 miles off shore.

Is His Health Good?

The general physical health of a person reveals itself in lower loops of the letters g, f, y, for these will be either as long, or longer, than the loops above the line like l, h. When the high letters above the line are large and the lower letters below are short, the individual is apt to be using his mental strength too rapidly for his physical energy or vitality. The nature lover usually writes with long lower loops.

If we examine the letters of sick people, in the possession of the physician, we will note how those with lung trouble so very often leave a little depression in the upper loops of b's, h's, l's.

Disturbances of the heart action are often noted in those whose writing is filled with thrice bent-down strokes of the letters. This may be due to wrong diet, which causes gas and irregular heart action. The acid-forming foods, such as white bread, pie, cake, and foods made from white sugar and white flour, are responsible for many ailments in their formation of gas, which only seem like heart trouble.

This Home Offers Many Features of the Dutch Colonial Style

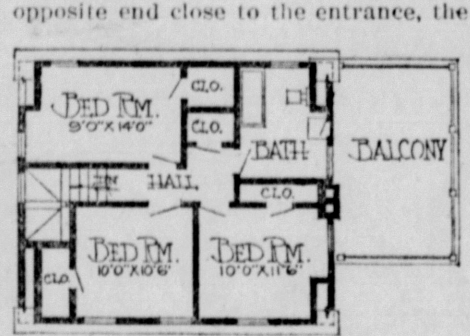

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Here is a very simple, but at the same time effective type of home. It is a plain rectangular design, 28 feet wide and 24 feet deep. It is covered by a steep pitched roof with the eaves at the second-story floor line. A wide dormer breaks this roof across almost its entire width and makes a second floor with ample head room providing large, well-lighted bedrooms. At one end, beyond the 28-foot width of the house proper, there is an attached garage which is blended with the lines of the house.

The wide siding, the shuttered windows, the gable ends and the dormer already mentioned suggest the colonial or Dutch colonial, though as a matter of fact this is not a truly Dutch colonial type. The effect, however, is one that is pleasing and the design offers many of the advantages of the true colonial.

At the front of the lower floor, one corner is cut off for a small porch. The balance of the front is occupied by a living room 20 feet long by 12 feet wide. To the rear of the living room are the dining room and kitchen. In one corner of the living room there is a large open fireplace, while at the opposite end close to the entrance, the stairway leads directly up from this room to the second floor.

Above stairs we find three bedrooms and bath. One of these rooms is of quite good size while the other two, though smaller, are still amply large according to the usual standards. Each bedroom is provided with a roomy closet and there is also a large closet in the hall, adjacent to the bath room door.

MELVIN SMITH, OF DENVER, FACES PROBABLE CHARGES OF FRAUD

DOCTORS THOUGH THE SUFFERED FROM SPONTANEOUS GANGRENE

Denver, Colo., March 9.—(UP)—After torturing himself for three years in order to receive $7.50 weekly as industrial compensation, Melvin Smith, 21, faced probable charges of fraud today.

I November, 1925, a physician treated Smith for a sulphuric acid burn on the hand. When the burn was slow in healing, Smith was taken to a hospital.

Tiny white spots appeared and physicians became puzzled. Learned surgeons were called in. None could explain the development.

Meanwhile, Smith was in intense pain but cheered the physicians on. After months of futile effort, the doctors agreed it was spontaneous gangrene and ordered the injured member amputated.

Smith said nothing and appeared ready to go through with the operation. But an insurance company became suspicious and placed a detective in Smith's room as a nurse.

The sleuth found a vial among the magazines near Smith's bed. The patient struggled to keep it and during the melee the vial's contents were spilled on the detective and the nurse. Smith fled. He was returned later.

The bottle, it was found, contained sulphuric acid and physicians said Smith had been applying it to his injury, despite the great pain attached.

Smith is normal, it was said at the hospital. He will recover.

Vast Open Spaces Filmed For Latest Zane Grey Story

Zane Grey wrote the West. Often in the past, he has proved himself a master of the yarns of the vast, open spaces as written for motion pictures.

Once again, this prolific author reveals his talents, this time in a new type of story which has been made into a Paramount film production, "Under The Tonto Rim."

"Under The Tonto Rim" comes to the Lyceum theatre Saturday and presents many fine characteristics, according to all reports.

Interior Decoration Stamps Individuality

Changed conditions are bringing us all to the enjoyment of the small house. The high cost of existing, the increased facilities for enjoying the out-of-doors and the larger interests of woman—all conspire to place the star of the wee house in the ascendancy and to create for it an important and distinctive place in modern life.

Informality and pleasant hospitality should be the keynote of the small house. It should be fresh and smart. Above all, the hackneyed decorations of the past order are to be avoided and imitation of the more pretentious schemes of today as well.

The time has come for the large house to covet the decorations of the small one, for there are manufacturers and decorators who specialize in the cottage type of furnishings.

The modern small-house furniture divides itself into three large classifications. These are by no means advocated as the only kinds, but they are the ones which seem to hold in themselves the most inviting suggestions. There are the modern adaptations of the old English and peasant cottage furniture which comes principally in oak and walnut; there are the modern painted varieties founded on the old English and peasant models; and there are the delightful modern reed and wicker pieces. These styles may be judiciously mingled, and even their creators urge against their purchase in "suites."

One should enter at once into the spirit of the wee house when one steps into the entrance hall, for it is not, as in the case of the large, formal house, the outer vestibule against the intrusion of strangers. The little house needs no such barrier.

Freed from the tyranny of the furniture "suite," and a pleasant background selected, the living room of the little house usually evolves itself very simply and naturally.

The relative shape and proportions of the furnishings for the wee house must be carefully considered, and one can, indeed, indulge in whims and fancies in a small house which they would never dare attempt in larger houses, and it is through the spirit of fearless experimentation that the most interesting results are obtained.

ROCKNE WILL SUPPORT POLICIES OF REPUBLICANS

ISSUES STATEMENT AS TO HIS CANDIDACY FOR U. S. SENATE

AGRICULTURAL RELIEF, LAKES WATERWAY, LAW ENFORCEMENT, ETC.

St. Paul, March 9.—(UP)—A. J. Rockne, candidate for U. S. senator, declared today that he would support the platforms and policies of the republican party in his race for office.

FAVORS CITY FOR CONVENTION SITE

Crow Wing County Historical Society Bids for State Meeting

ORGANIZATION GETS CHARTER

Bylaws Adopted: $300 Received From Estate of Leon E. Lum

It is almost a certainty that Brainerd will be selected the convention city of the Minnesota Historical society for the year 1928.

Letters suggesting that Brainerd would meet the complete requirements of the state organization for the holding of this year's convention followed by an explanation relative to the tentative program essential for the convention have been received from officials of the Minnesota Historical society. With this in mind members of the Crow Wing County Historical society met in special session last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms and voted to extend an invitation to the state society to make Brainerd their 1928 summer convention site. The resolution was adopted on motion of Mrs. Florence F. Fleming and Mrs. J. M. Elder.

On motion the society decided to tender its application for membership in the State Historical society. The receipt of a charter from the state was announced by President Sam R. Adair.

Proposed bylaws were read and after discussion were on motion adopted. The treasurer reported the receipt of $300 from the estate of the late Leon E. Lum. The bill of Judge L. B. Kinder for expenses incurred in incorporation papers was read and allowed. The bill of the Brainerd Dispatch for printing was also read and allowed.

On motion unanimously carried G. D. LaBar was elected honorary president of the society for life.

The tentative program for the state convention as outlined by Theodore C. Blegen, assistant superintendent of the Minnesota Historical society in a letter to Judge L. B. Kinder will include the following features:

"An all day automobile tour from the Twin Cities to Brainerd. This would be on the day preceding the convention sessions. Usually we have made various stops in connection with these 'historic tours.' It occurs to me that we might possibly arrange a special affair on the site of old Fort Ripley. Perhaps we might have a luncheon at one of the towns we go through. Usually these tours are very colorful affairs and last summer the tour was very well attended.

"Sessions for one day at the convention city. These might include a morning session with papers and addresses, a luncheon followed by a discussion of how to promote local history interests, perhaps an afternoon session or an automobile tour to places of special interest in the vicinity and finally the evening session. In most of the towns that we have gone to the local society or the locality through special committees has organized a local historic exhibit of subjects of various sorts for display in the windows along the principal avenue or in the main hall where the sessions have been held."

Mr. Blegen further writes: "With reference to entertainment and financing we have no hard and fast rules. The matter depends pretty largely upon the situation in the town that we go to. All those who attend the convention would expect to reserve rooms at local hotels or in case they went to private homes to pay for rooms made available for them there. They are also prepared to pay on an individual basis for whatever luncheons or dinners may be given. Sometimes in this respect the locality has taken matters into its own hands. In one town that we went to a great outdoor picnic was organized at which the people from the locality were present with their own picnic baskets, but all the guests from outside the community were entertained. I want to make it clear that our desire would be to avoid making the meeting a burden to anybody. The community would furnish the hall or auditorium for the sessions. If an afternoon automobile tour to places of special interest nearby was attempted I suppose the visitors would be cared for in the cars of local residents."

We will do the little odd repair jobs as well as the big ones. We are equipped for it.

Mr. Polk was well known here a number of years ago. He received his degree in law and practiced for some time with his father in the firm of Polk and Polk. He later left the law field to enter newspaper work. At the time of his death he was a member of the Minneapolis Journal staff.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

HIGHWAYS ARE ABOUT THE SAME

Minnesota highways continue about the same as a week ago, according to the road condition report issued by the State Highway department today. In the southern half of the state, alternate thawing and freezing have left many routes rough and rutty. No blockades from yesterday's snow were reported, but if it should be followed by thawing, many of the unpaved routes may be sloppy and poor going. In the northern part of the state roads have not been affected by thawing and all routes are reported good except for some slippery spots.

The detailed reports below are based upon reports made by the district superintendents yesterday, and some allowance should be made in case of continued snow or rain. Roads insofar as they refer to the Brainerd Lake Region:

T. H. No. 2—Duluth, Brainerd, Wadena, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead—260 miles—Duluth, paved—Carlton, good—Hawley, paved—Moorhead.

T. H. No. 18—Elk River, Milaca and Brainerd—103 miles—Good.

T. H. No. 19—Brainerd, Walker and Cass Lake—93 miles—Good.

He has been active in the organizing of an association for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis which resulted in the Minnesota Public Health association in 1916.

Dr. Meyers has been president of the Minnesota Public Health association for the past two years and is nationally known for his writings on tuberculosis.

Dr. Locken is mayor of the city of Crookston and is past president of the State Sanitary conference and is now president of the Norman-Polk Sanatorium commission.

LIONS CLUB BACKS CALF CLUB PROJECT

Thirty-Seven Members Sponsored in Work by Individual Members

PLAN GET-TOGETHER MEETING

Program for Calf Club Members to be Outlined by Specialists

With interest ever widening among clubs, associations, and boys and girls, the Calf club project for Crow Wing county this year promises to be highly successful in its inauguration year.

The Lions club Wednesday evening devoted the major part of the evening to discussion on the work, started by E. G. Roth, county agent.

Already 30 members of the Lions club have willingly agreed to sponsor one member each. Seven additional boys and girls who have signified their intention to join will also be backed by the Lions.

A get-together meeting of Lions and Boys and Girls Calf club members is scheduled here the first Wednesday in April during which time speakers will present the plans to govern the club's program.

Rev. J. R. Michaelson was initiated into the club. He gave an interesting talk on "Lionism."

Contribution to the national wide fund raised to meet expenses of a radio program to be given over a network of stations starting at New York city was made by the local members to the amount of 25 cents per member. The program will be put on for the benefit of the blind. The date has not been announced yet.

The Smoothness and Snap That All America is Demanding

There's no longer any doubt about it. America is demanding more and more from its automobiles. More power... more style... more speed. And above all else... more smoothness and snap.

Smoothness that brings to driving new pleasures and new delights. Snap that responds to the traffic signal as a sprinter responds to the gun. Smoothness and snap that you know are the very essence of motoring satisfaction. Smoothness and snap that you find revealed in the All-American Six.

You find them there because of Oakland's big, impressive brute of an engine which starts so easily 'way below zero. Because of its famous GMR cylinder head... force feed fuel pump... 79-lb. crankshaft... generously oversize connecting rods and other vital parts.

Because of its ruggedly constructed chassis... its bigger clutch and smoothly shifting gears... and the super-precision construction demanded in the All-American principle of design.

Once you've experienced its smoothness... once you've witnessed its snap... you'll know why the All-American Six is winning such tremendous success!

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, a Frisco politician, seeks to secure valuable ancestral Vasquez property. His lawyer's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores Vasquez and exposes Buckwell's perfidy. Buckwell attempts to wreck their love affair. Vasquez dies of stroke when Buckwell threatens to dispossess him. Dolores and Terry expose Buckwell as Chinaman to avenge Vasquez's death. Buckwell kidnaps them and threatens Terry's life unless Dolores reveals his name. She lies to his associates and saves Terry. Buckwell triumphs. Dolores foils Buckwell and exposes him to other bosses. Terry is freed but Buckwell escapes into underworld, forcing Dolores with him.

And in the very heart of this underground community was a meeting place reserved for a chosen few; for the minority whose worldly wealth had reached the point where it could buy whatever the heart desired. Guarded approaches led from a dozen directions, like the spokes of a wheel, with this shrine of evil mystery as the hub. "The Shrine of the Golden Door" it was called. But to those denizens of the underworld who were not permitted to enter its sacred and mysterious interior it had been dubbed "The Den of a Thousand Sins." As apt an expression as could be found.

What mad notion possessed Buckwell; when he escaped from the wrath of the bosses and the Chinamen he had wronged, forcing Dolores to go with him; he probably did not know himself. His most urgent idea was to flee. But where? He tried to decide as he and San

The grinning face of a Chinaman leered at her.

Toy alternately pushed and pulled Dolores along the dimly lighted passage that led from the back of his private shrine. The power of the long leaders was great. The long arm of their authority reached to the innermost depths of the underworld. No place was safe from their prying eyes.

No place save one. Buckwell's eyes lighted with keen anticipation as he thought of "The Den of a Thousand Sins." Here he would be safe. Not even the influence of the long leaders was great enough for them to violate the sacred laws of its shrine, that gave protection to all who were within its walls. He smiled eagerly as he urged Dolores to a greater haste. What would happen after he left its protecting walls was another matter, but that evil day would be postponed as long as possible.

They emerged from the narrow passage along which they had been traveling and entered a broader one that was evidently a main thoroughfare for the net work of smaller ones that led into it. Here for the first time they encountered some of the dwellers of this underground city. Slant eyed Celestians shuffling along gazed at them curiously, but no one accosted them or offered to interfere in anyway.

Dolores was half dead with terror and weariness. Her tired brain was in a daze. The events of the last day passed before her like the phantasy of a fevered dream. She tried to struggle from Buckwell's grasp, but her feeble strength was not equal to the task. With a sob of resignation she permitted herself to be dragged along.

Presently they turned aside from the main passage and entered a narrow one which was so tortuously it was impossible to tell the direction in which they were going. Suddenly an iron door blocked their progress. Buckwell tapped on its surface in queer fashion. A small panel opened and the wrinkled features of an old Chinese woman peered out at them. She recognized Buckwell and without delay opened the door for them to enter.

A carpeted passageway faced them. This widened gradually until it disappeared entirely into a huge semi-circular room luxuriously furnished. Apparently it was an outer hall or reception room, because several doors on the inner side indicated that the main chamber was somewhere beyond.

Here they were met by a hard-faced, painted woman. She was elaborately gowned and greeted Buckwell with a mingling of familiarity and great respect. "But whom have we here?" she crooned softly as she took hold of Dolores' arm.

"She, my dear Madam," replied Buckwell, "is a pearl of great price. A princess of Spain whose haughty pride repulsed the advances of a certain man of influence, and whose foolish tongue betrayed an innermost secret of his heart. Guard her well and see that she is most becomingly groomed, for I have need of her late in the evening."

With the faithful San Toy on one side and the painted Madam on the other, Dolores was half led, half carried to an inner chamber where she was unceremoniously deposited on a low divan.

"The young woman seems exhausted. It will be better if we leave her to rest for awhile. Later on she will perhaps be more tractable and more pleasing to those who are interested in her," said the Madam with the wisdom of much experience in such matters. "Come, San Toy," she continued, "see that she is not disturbed, and I will see that she is well guarded."

How long she lay on the couch, Dolores had no idea. Her remembrance of the last hour was but a hazy dream, in which a Chinese girl, a painted woman and the hated Buckwell were the outstanding characters. Terry was far away, somewhere in the dim past, but she was unable to determine where she had last seen him. Try as hard as she would, she could not bring him into the present. She tossed restlessly and an occasional moan escaped her lips. Presently she slept and her sleep was the deep slumber of a tired child.

She awakened with a start and jumped to her feet. The rest had cleared her tired brain. With feverish activity she pieced together the events of the last few hours. She knew that she was in Buckwell's power, but where, she did not know. She determined to escape if it was humanly possible. Approaching the door, she opened it cautiously. The grinning face of a Chinaman leered at her as she shrunk back in dismay. The door was guarded. She would have to wait.

A moment later the door opened softly and the Madam entered. "Well, my dear, I'm glad to see that you have rested. Come with me and we'll find a gown for you that will be more suitable than the one you are wearing." Her voice was silky in its smoothness.

Dolores arose obediently. Her mind was actively alert but she had determined to assume a willing attitude until a more favorable opportunity of escape presented itself.

Madam smiled graciously as she conducted her beautiful charge from the room.

After Buckwell had left Dolores to the tender mercies of Madam, he disappeared behind a curtained doorway and sought the manager of the Golden Door.

That worthy individual greeted Buckwell courteously and they retired to a small table, out of hearing of the other inmates of the room, where Buckwell spoke in earnest whispers. The manager listened politely but his fat and oily countenance was impassive as Buckwell pleaded:

"It will be an interesting diversion for your guests."

The manager shook his head. "I cannot do it. To-night is the Feast of Desire and I dare not risk the displeasure of my guests."

Buckwell frowned. Then as if another argument suggested itself, he smilingly answered, "But I will be glad to give you a percentage of the proceeds."

The manager's eyes gleamed avariciously. "How much?" he queried.

"Ten percent!" Buckwell responded.

"No! It is not enough." And he moved as if to arise. Buckwell reached out a detaining hand. "Twenty then! But no more. I will try another way first." His voice had the hint of a threat which the manager was quick to notice.

"Very well," he replied. "Let it be twenty." They shook hands in agreement.

Back in the maze of underground passages, Terry and the dwarf raced madly along in pursuit of Buckwell and Dolores. They were certain of the road by which he had left the shrine room but they did not know which way he had gone after entering the main tunnel. As they ran, the dwarf now and then stopped a passing Chinese and spoke to him in Chinese, but with no success. It was fruitless to proceed any farther in their headlong, heedless fashion, and they sat down to discuss the best thing to do.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, a Frisco politician, seeks to secure valuable ancestral Vasquez property. His lawyer's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores Vasquez and exposes Buckwell's perfidy. Buckwell attempts to wreck their love affair. Vasquez dies of stroke when Buckwell threatens to dispossess him. Dolores and Terry expose Buckwell as Chinaman to avenge Vasquez's death. Buckwell kidnaps them and threatens Terry's life unless Dolores clears his name. She lies to his associates and saves Terry. Buckwell triumphant. Dolores foils Buckwell and exposes him to other bosses. Terry is freed but Buckwell escapes into underworld, forcing Dolores with him.

And in the very heart of this underground community was a meeting place reserved for a chosen few; for the minority whose worldly wealth had reached the point where it could buy whatever the heart desired. Guarded approaches led from a dozen directions, like the spokes of a wheel, with this shrine of evil mystery as the hub. "The Shrine of the Golden Door" it was called. But to those denizens of the underworld who were not permitted to enter its sacred and mysterious interior it had been dubbed "The Den of a Thousand Sins." As apt an expression as could be found.

What mad notion possessed Buckwell; when he escaped from the wrath of the bosses and the Chinamen he had wronged, forcing Dolores to go with him; he probably did not know himself. His most urgent idea was to flee. But where? He tried to decide as he and San

The grinning face of a Chinaman leered at her.

Toy alternately pushed and pulled Dolores along the dimly lighted passage that led from the back of his private shrine. The power of the long leaders was great. The long arm of their authority reached to the innermost depths of the underworld. No place was safe from their prying eyes.

No place save one. Buckwell's eyes lighted with keen anticipation as he thought of "The Den of a Thousand Sins." Here he would be safe. Not even the influence of the long leaders was great enough for them to violate the sacred laws of his shrine, that gave protection to all who were within its walls. He smiled eagerly as he urged Dolores to a greater haste. What would happen after he left its protecting walls was another matter, but that evil day would be postponed as long as possible.

They emerged from the narrow passage along which they had been traveling and entered a broader one that was evidently a main thoroughfare for the net work of smaller ones that led into it. Here for the first time they encountered some of the dwellers of this underground city. Slant-eyed Celestials shuffling along gazed at them curiously, but no one accosted them or offered to interfere in anyway.

Dolores was half dead with terror and weariness. Her tired brain was in a daze. The events of the last day passed before her like the phantasy of a fevered dream. She tried to struggle from Buckwell's grasp, but her feeble strength was not equal to the task. With a sob of resignation she permitted herself to be dragged along.

Presently they turned aside from the main passage and entered a narrow one that wound so tortuously it was impossible to tell the direction in which they were going. Suddenly an iron door blocked their progress. Buckwell tapped on its surface in queer fashion. A small panel opened and the wrinkled features of an old Chinese woman peered out at them. She recognized Buckwell and without delay opened the door for them to enter.

A carpeted passageway faced them. This widened gradually until it disappeared entirely into a huge semi-circular room luxuriously furnished. Apparently it was an outer hall or reception room because several doors on the inner side indicated that the main chamber was somewhere beyond.

Here they were met by a hard-faced, painted woman. She was elaborately gowned and greeted Buckwell with a mingling of familiarity and great respect. "But whom have we here?" she crooned softly as she took hold of Dolores's arm.

"She, my dear Madam," replied Buckwell, "is a pearl of great price. A princess of Spain whose haughty pride repulsed the advances of a certain man of influence, and whose foolish tongue betrayed an innermost secret of his heart. Guard her well and see that she is most becomingly gowned, for I have need of her later in the evening.

With the faithful San Toy on one side and the painted Madam on the other, Dolores was half led, half carried to an inner chamber where she was unceremoniously deposited on a low divan.

"The young woman seems exhausted. It will be better if we leave her to rest for awhile. Later on she will perhaps be more tractable and more pleasing to those who are interested in her," said the Madam with the wisdom of much experience in such matters. "Come, San Toy," she continued, "see that she is not disturbed, and I will see that she is well guarded."

How long she lay on the couch, Dolores had no idea. Her remembrance of the last hour was but a hazy dream, in which a Chinese girl, a painted woman and the hated Buckwell were the outstanding characters. Terry was far away, somewhere in the dim past, but she was unable to determine where she had last seen him. Try as hard as she would, she could not bring him into the present. She tossed restlessly and an occasional moan escaped her lips. Presently she slept and her sleep was the deep slumber of a tired child.

She awakened with a start and jumped to her feet. The rest had cleared her tired brain. With feverish activity she pieced together the events of the last few hours. She knew that she was in Buckwell's power, but where, she did not know. She determined to escape if it was humanly possible. Approaching the door, she opened it cautiously. The grinning face of a Chinaman leered at her as she shrank back in dismay. The door was guarded. She would have to wait.

A moment later the door opened softly and the Madam entered.

"Well, my dear, I'm glad to see that you have rested. Come with me and we'll find a gown for you that will be more suitable than the one you are wearing." Her voice was sibilant in its smoothness.

Dolores arose obediently. Her mind was actively alert but she had determined to assume a willing attitude until a more favorable opportunity of escape presented itself.

Madam smiled graciously as she conducted her beautiful charge from the room.

After Buckwell had left Dolores to the tender mercies of Madam, he disappeared behind a curtained doorway and sought the manager of the Golden Door.

That worthy individual greeted Buckwell courteously and they retired to a small table, out of hearing of the other inmates of the room, where Buckwell spoke in the confidential whisper. The manager listened politely but his fat and oily countenance was impassive as Buckwell pleaded:

"It will be an interesting diversion for your guests."

The manager shook his head. "I cannot do it. To-night is the Feast of Desire and I dare not risk the displeasure of my guests."

Buckwell frowned. Then as if another argument suggested itself, he smilingly answered, "But I will be glad to give you a percentage of the proceeds."

The manager's eyes gleamed avariciously. "How much?" he queried.

"Ten percent!" Buckwell responded.

"No! It is not enough." And he moved as if to arise.

Buckwell reached out a detaining hand. "Twenty then! But no more. I will try another way first."

His voice had the hint of a threat which the manager was quick to notice.

"Very well," he replied. "Let it be twenty." They shook hands in agreement.

Back in the maze of underground passages, Terry and the dwarf raced madly along in pursuit of Buckwell and Dolores. They were certain of the road by which he had left the shrine room but they did not know which way he had gone after entering the main tunnel. As they ran, the dwarf now and then stopped a passing Chinese and spoke to him in Chinese, but with no success. It was fruitless to proceed any farther in their headlong, heedless fashion, and they sat down to discuss the best thing to do.
